Mitre, a pointed headdress worn by bishops since 1100. Perhaps inspired by descriptions of priests in the Hebrew Bible. Sample will take it off when he's praying. Underneath, he'll wear a silken skull cap, called a zucchetto.

Pectoral cross, worn around one's neck and resting close to the heart. It may include precious stones or the relics of a saint. Bishops, archbishops, cardinals and popes often wear the cross when they are not wearing formal vestments.

Alb, a white garment symbolizing the sanctifying grace of baptism and purity of heart. Traditionally, albs are made of plain linen.

Crozier, a long staff that symbolizes a bishop or archbishop's role as a good shepherd, who leads his flock toward salvation, disciplining and protecting them along the way.

Chasuble, a cape worn over the other vestments, symbolizing the qualities that Jesus embodied. Sample will wear white vestments, trimmed in blue, according to the archdiocese.

Ring, a symbol of a bishop's jurisdiction within the church. In the old days, a ring was used to seal official documents. Like a wedding ring, it suggests a bishop is wedded to his diocese.

What's missing from this picture?

Sample will be presented with a pallium, a white woolen band that archbishops receive directly from the pope. Sample will travel to Rome in June to receive one from Pope Francis.
